FATHER MARK WRITES: GREAT EXPECTATIONS – EMBRACING GOD'S VISION FOR OUR LIVES

This weekend, we begin a new series of reflections on 'expectations. Autumn is a season of expectations: a new school year, family plans after summer, and hopes for our sports teams. Expectations are a strong belief that something will happen in the future. They're not just an autumn thing; they're a life thing. Life is full of expectations.

Some expectations are healthy and energising, like those tied to an expectant mother or a new venture. Our faith calls us to live with expectation, trusting in God's goodness and grace. But expectations can also burden us, leading to disappointment or disillusionment. Some people lower their expectations so much that they stop hoping altogether. I don't believe that's any way to live.

In this series, we'll explore the hidden power of expectations, both those that weigh us down and those that lift us up. I invite you to examine what you expect from God, others, and yourselves, to let go of unrealistic expectations and embrace hope-filled ones.

Today, I suggest four key truths about expectations vital for our well-being. If we don't grasp these truths, our expectations can harm us.

Truth one: Expectations are multifaceted.

We have expectations for every area of life. Every day, we operate under assumptions: your alarm will go off, your coffee will be hot, your car will start. Some expectations are practical necessities: employees doing their job, family helping with chores, students being responsible. Others are held in our hearts: a spouse being attentive, children getting along, friends supporting us, truthfulness in relationships.

Truth two: Expectations are a lens through which we evaluate our lives.

When your job meets your expectations, you feel good about it. When a family member meets your expectations, you feel better about them. Conversely, unmet expectations can leave you feeling annoyed or angry.

These are our usual Mass times. For any changes or special celebrations, please check the back page for this week's full schedule.

Truth three: Expectations are a two-way street.

While you have expectations for me, I have expectations for you. Expectations are placed upon us all the time: how you do your job, how you parent, how you spend holidays. There are unspoken expectations from community or culture: what clothes to wear, what car to drive, where children go to school. Just as we evaluate others by our expectations, they evaluate us by theirs.

Truth four: We are responsible for managing our expectations.

Managing expectations means becoming aware of what we expect from others. How often do we get upset because we're surprised by an expectation we weren't aware of? We must give thought to our expectations, confirm they're realistic, and communicate them. This week, start by becoming more aware of your expectations.

Gospel Reflection

In our Gospel this weekend, we hear a conversation between Jesus and Nicodemus, a Pharisee. Nicodemus probably expected the Messiah to be a great King like David, liberating his people. He came to Jesus by night, curious about Him, expecting to learn more about God. But he didn't expect Jesus' answer about being born again of the Holy Spirit.

Jesus, with a heavenly perspective, expected His crucifixion to be a victory, a healing, a salvation. He referenced Moses lifting the serpent in the desert, symbolising healing for those who looked upon it. Jesus expected to be lifted up on the cross, not as a defeat, but as a triumph of God's saving love. Whoever believes in Him, that is looks upon Him with the eyes of faith, will be saved for eternal life.

Nicodemus was present at Jesus' burial, bringing myrrh and aloes. By then, perhaps he shared the disciples' lost hope, expecting Jesus to redeem Israel. But was he able to recall Jesus' words and see the cross as a throne of glory, a source of healing and eternal life?

Personal Reflection

And what about you? It might seem easier to lower your expectations or have none at all. The 18th century poet Alexander Pope once wrote: "Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall not be disappointed." But that's a sad way to live. Low expectations can hurt our hearts.

Can you gaze upon Jesus with faith, even in pain and confusion, and let Him shape your expectations? Can you let God's vision of you be the lens through which you see your life?

Our Heavenly Father has a Great Expectation: for us to become like His Son. Let's embrace this expectation, allowing it to lift us up and guide us in our journey of faith.
